“Tactical Tasks and Tips in Truck Work”

With Lieutenant Mike Ciampo, FDNY

Across the state, fire departments respond daily to fires and emergencies that require some kind of truck company function to be performed. Whether your department has a dedicated truck company or not, you can bet that one of the “LOVERS-U” functions (ladders, overhaul, ventilation, forcible entry, rescue, search, and utility control) is performed. Also, often due to limited manpower and resources, firefighters must adapt to the conditions faced and overcome the challenges to handle the situations that arise. In this program, students will be shown numerous street proven tactics and tips that will increase their overall skill level, improve their safety, help enhance tactical performance, and save time and energy while operating at emergencies and fires. Some of these skill sets include performing new and improved leg lock maneuvers, unusual ladder raises when faced with obstructions, hand and power tool usage strategies, ventilation cutting options, and apparatus set-up, positioning, and operation.

Michael N. Ciampo is a lieutenant in the Fire Department of New York (FDNY). Previously, he served with the District of Columbia Fire Department and the Wyckoff (NJ) Volunteer Fire Department. Ciampo has a bachelor of arts degree in fire science from John Jay College of Criminal Justice. He wrote the ladder chapter and co-authored the ventilation chapter for Fire Engineering’s Handbook for Firefighter I and II. Ciampo is featured in Fire Engineering’s “Bread & Butter Operations Ground Ladders” DVD, the “Training Minutes” truck company videos on www.fireengineering.com, and writes the column “On Fire” for Fire Engineering.
